

"She dressed up as a schoolgirl last night...
We ain't done Swedish Au Pair for a bit!"

Amy is fifty – feeling fat, fed up and finished. Her teenage son is playing up, her mother is increasingly demanding and there's nothing she can do to help her best friend who is desperate to conceive.

Suddenly something happens which upsets the apple cart – and her marriage, her friendship and the whole structure of her life are turned upside down.

"I'm not a computer.
You can't just press Undo."

You are warmly invited to a staged reading of

FALLING

A new play for television
By Rosalind Adler

Thursday 26th February
Join us for a glass of wine at 6.30pm
for a 7pm start

St Paul's Church
Covent Garden Piazza
www.actorschurch.org
020 7836 5221

"I'm so glad I came, I was so impressed!"
Barry Humphries on Adler's 'JUBILATE!'

RSVP
ros@rosadler.com
07771 714 762

Rosalind Adler / Writer

As an actress Rosalind works regularly at the Soho Theatre as part of The Comedy Project, writing and appearing in new comedy. This March will see the first performance of her new one-woman play 'Lol' set in the world of internet dating. Other work includes the play 'Jubilate!' in which she plays all five characters. Most recently she appeared in 'Between Friends', which she co-wrote with Carolyn Pertwee.

www.rosadler.com

Jeremy Bond / Director

Directing includes a pre-West End production of 'Oliver!' with Rowan Atkinson and productions at the Watford Palace Theatre, the Salisbury Playhouse, the Hong Kong Arts Centre, the Theatre Antibea in France and a national tour of Switzerland. He was previously senior script reader at the Theatre Royal, Stratford East and has worked with new writers at the Soho Theatre, the Old Vic and the Croydon Warehouse.